Necromancer CYOA

Made by The Scientist
of 1.8.2

You are the student of a powerful necromancer. He has been training you for most of your life in the arts he has mastered. He is old now and relies greatly upon your youthfulness.

Just before the crowning moment of his life's work a band of murderhobos had broken into his tower and murdered him. He told you to flee, so that you may live. You gathered up the most prized books in the necromancer's collection, managing to sneak out of the tower and flee into the night.

God

There are three gods that rule the world.
Most people worship them.
Which one do you worship?

The Mother, She is the Light That Shines, illuminating the world and giving life to all. She loves Her children very much, and does not want to see harm come to them. This has lead to Her church passing restrictive laws to enforce safety upon all. Additionally, Her people have come to rely upon the Mother for a great many things. The Mother does not wish her children to stay among the living for too long as She wishes to embrace them after a full life. Because of this, using magic to extend one's life is seen as "abandoning the Mother" and Her church has a whole order dedicated to stamping out this heresy. Creating life from unlife is also frowned upon, as only the Mother is seen as having the right to create life; as such the creation of life is Her domain.

The Father, also called the Dark Lord. He is the most common god of those that do not worship the Mother for her restrictive views of what is to be. His philosophy elevates the strong, and the gifts that He gives always come with a price. People that worship the Father tend to value strength, individual skills and adherence to duty. The Father does not interfere in the lives of His followers, but will answer certain prayers. The Father is often criticised for appearing to be absent in the world, but He merely wishes His followers and all the people of the world to rise and fall upon their own merits. If His people are in need of Him, He will help them though. His symbol holds great power and there are orders that use it to conquer their enemies; though whether they succeed or not is up to them.

The Child is neither boy nor girl, It is both yet neither. Aggressive tactics were commonplace and the Child itself wished for its people to rule the world, and have all the room they needed for their rapidly-growing population. and its people reflected this. The Parents banished it beneath the southern-most continent, where it sleeps. The Child has become much more caring in its rest, slowly undoing the damage it has wrought. thus the Child has a split personality that embodies the virtues of both the Mother and Father. The Child now gives aid to its worshippers, but without as many restrictions on behaviour, actions or such.

Some people in the world have decided that the gods are not deserving of worship and have chosen to serve themselves. They pay no heed to the gods and their wills. They must rely on their own skills. Operating on their own or in small cults and organisations, those that do not worship the gods draw upon the force that permeates the world around them. Most often they will use symbols and seals to tap into the magic of the world and may not even have any intrinsic power themselves. The oldest and most powerful organisation of the non-worshippers is the Necropolis, a group of liches dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge for its own sake.
